Introduction to Java Persistence API(JPA) - JavaBeat -

Java Persistence API (JPA) provides POJO (Plain Old Java Object) leading persistence frameworks like Toplink (from Oracle) and Hibernate (from JBoss). The state of these data is made permanent by storing them in a persistent medium like . This is done by marking the class with @Entity annotation.

Implementing composite keys with JPA and Hibernate - IBM -

Also, they tend to tie your database and ORM design to the original domain. This annotation is the first piece of the composite key jigsaw puzzle. You can see that the primary key is indeed a composite made up of the street and city fields. This is the simple pattern of the Java Persistence API (JPA).
